Synopsis:

The Hunter's Craft is a disturbing confessional novel told from the perspective of a killer who considers himself a "hunter." In chilling prose, he equates murder with sport, challenging readers to grapple with morality, empathy, and the darkness within us all.

Why It Stands Out:

- First-person confessional style, raw and unfiltered.
- Disturbing yet compelling — perfect for fans of American Psycho and Silence of the Lambs.
- Designed for discussion — ethical, psychological, and societal questions make it book club ready.

Pull Quote:

“Nothing can take the place of living through it, completing a successful hunt. Writing might be a cheap placebo, but it keeps me satisfied for a little while.”
